Eric,

I was working on entering one of your notes from the Bank of Claiborne in Tazewell, TN in my book on TN notes. (See attached scan of the face of your note I got when I was in St Louis with you a couple of years ago.) Garland has 2 similar notes listed one with a plain back Garland-1217 and the other with a red design on the back Garland 1218. I do not know which is your note. If you get a chance let me know if your note has the red design on the back or not.

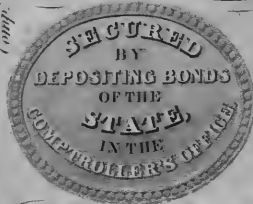

Thanks

Dear Dennis:

I finally located at a bank vault the $5 Bank of Claiborne piece. It has a beautiful light red three section back design including a large oval flat position design in the middle and on each side a scalloped ring of 12 ovals in a circle like the Fugio reverse design. I will send you an image if you need it.

I looked at the overprinted three letters on the face and the first initial may not be an L. It looks more like an E to me but is blurred. Look at your image and see what you think.

Happy Valentine Day.

Eric

Thanks for looking it up for me. I have an image of the back of someone else's Bank of Claiborne $5 so I do not need a scan of the back of your note.

I agree the first letter on the face of the note is an E not an L. Only thing I have ever hear that these stamps are is teller's stamp indicating he had counted the stack of notes. Do you have any idea what this particular stamp is for?

Dennis

Thank you, Dennis, for your inquiry. Let me review our Tennessee holdings over the next month or so and then get back to you.

Eric,

You may remember a few years back I spent the day with you at your museum to scan TN obsolete currency. I see from the Numismatic press you are selling off some of the museum holdings to fund the museum. You have one piece I would love to have it is a $5 City of Chattanooga scrip – see attached image of the note. I have a complete set of these types except for the type you have. There is another one of this type in the Chattanooga Library.

If you plan to send this note to sell let me know. These notes are scarce but fortunately I am probably the only collector that collects them. I researched and published a number of articles and exhibit the notes at many shows.

Thanks
Dennis
